

SLA & Support Tiers

Support Tiers Overview

FlowStack offers three tiers of support, matching the three subscription plans. Starter includes community support only, via our public forum. Growth includes email support with guaranteed response times. Enterprise includes dedicated support with a named account manager and the fastest response commitments.

Response Time SLAs

Response time is measured from when a support ticket is submitted to when a human agent first responds, not when the issue is resolved. Growth plan tickets are answered within 24 hours on business days. Enterprise plan tickets are answered within 4 hours, 24 hours a day, 7 days a week, including holidays.

Critical severity tickets, defined as a total outage of your active workflows, are escalated automatically regardless of plan and receive a response within 1 hour on Enterprise and 4 hours on Growth.

Uptime Guarantee

Enterprise plans include a 99.9 percent monthly uptime guarantee for the FlowStack platform, excluding scheduled maintenance windows announced at least 48 hours in advance. Growth and Starter plans do not carry a contractual uptime guarantee, though our historical platform uptime is published on our public status page.

Support Channels by Plan

Starter: community forum only. Growth: email support plus the community forum. Enterprise: email, a dedicated Slack Connect channel shared with your account manager, and scheduled quarterly business reviews.

Escalation Path

If a Growth or Enterprise ticket is not resolved within its committed response window, reply to the ticket and reference the original SLA to trigger an automatic escalation to a senior support engineer. Enterprise customers can additionally message their named account manager directly for any ticket they feel is not progressing.

Credits for SLA Breach

Enterprise customers are eligible for service credits if the monthly uptime guarantee is missed, calculated as a percentage of that month's subscription fee based on how far uptime fell below 99.9 percent. Credits must be requested within 30 days of the end of the affected billing month and are applied to a future invoice, not issued as a refund.